

Automotive Aftermarket Health Insurance Program

Health insurance is the employee benefit most requested by the most qualified employees. Companies who offer health insurance are saying to current and potential workers that they want to employ the best.

But for you, the company, it's not that simple. The decision to select the correct carrier, to choose their most cost-effective health policy and to design the right employer-employee cost sharing arrangement is complicated. State laws, employee ages and constant updates in the wide variety of policies offered by insurance companies make your decision difficult and time consuming. Endorsed by AAIA, the Automotive Aftermarket Health Insurance Program (AAHIP), is a national network of state and regional automotive aftermarket trade associations who are prepared to simplify your insurance decisions, save you time and money; and give you confidence that you've made the best choice for your company and your employees.

All AAIA members and prospective members are invited to get a no-obligation quote on the best available employee benefit health insurance plans available today. Click here to complete a short request form that will put you in touch with the AAHIP expert in your local area.
